ICM 2006 Circular Letter 10

Subject: e-Program and Opening Ceremony

Dear colleagues,

At this stage, we would like to highlight the following information concerning the ICM 2006:

PROGRAM

The online version of the program of the ICM 2006 is already available at <http://www.icm2006.org>

This version is being continually updated from now on and during the congress. We strongly recommend checking the final schedule of short communications and to know about the few last minute scheduled activities in the internet areas of the Congress Center.

The list of daily activities at each room will be posted at its entrance door.

Practical indications about posters display will be posted at their exhibition area. In addition to the number given at the submission, each poster is associated with a panel number. This numbering has been assigned taking into account thematic proximity.

Changes in the invited program, if any, will appear in the online program and they will also be announced in a special section of the printed version of the Daily News.

We are sorry that we cannot accept changes in the schedule of presentations of short communications
